

Members of Free Wheeling Program visited the Sutton Valley Weavers' Guild

Raymonde and Isabelle were both giving advice to Maygan.

On Tuesday, November 14, six young adults from the Free Wheeling Program paid a visit to the Sutton Valley Weavers' Guild in West Brome. Raymonde of the Guild set up the visit. Myriam de Caisserges, the director of financing, accompanied the young adults. Each visitor was paired up with a Guild member and they learned how to begin knitting a scarf. As you can see by the photographs it was a successful venture. The scarves will come in handy as winter is indeed coming!

Pleins Rayons, a.k.a. Free Wheeling is a program that has been going on for a few years. The young people in the program help to repair bicycles that are then redistributed to schools throughout the Brome-missisquoi region. Michael and Brian Herman are directors of the program. It is located in the old Tupperware building on highway 139, Jean Jacques Bertrand Street, in Cowansville. The program is funded by donations. It started out small but now up to 82 people are participating in the program every week. If anyone wants more information they can contact Stephan Marcoux, the director general of the program at 450-531-8293. The website is at pleinsrayons.ca.
